Studies in Comparative International Development 64– American Sociological Review – In this context, their right to a preliminary, compulsory consultation, carried out by the State, in good faith and in concertation, will be respected and guaranteed, with regard to the exploitation of non-renewable natural resources in the territory they inhabit. The Constitution imposed a strict "no-re-election" term limit, which was adopted. Adopting this outlook would mean changing our understanding of a political organization until now seen as an outgrowth of social movements of the most oppressed. The constituent assembly did not usurp the powers of congress. With the collapse of the party system, the emergent model of participation is based on social movements and the governing MAS is the instrument of these movements. The State guarantees, respects and protects the rights of original indigenous peoples. A new agreement with the IMF has proved elusive.
